LOCAL MATTERS. To our Subscribers.—We would call the attention of those who are indebted to us throughout the country, that the old year is closing and their re not yet settled. The price of subaccounts are not yet settled. The price of suc-scription is not large, and will not be missed from their plethoric pockets. The first of January has long been celebrated as a day set spart for closing old accounts, and we would not have our friends depart from this time-honored custom. CORONER'S INQUEST .- Magistrate C. E. KANA CORONER'S INQUEST.—Magistrate C. E. KANA-PAUX, acting Coroner, held an inquest, yesterday morning, on the body of Joseph Selvezs, a Spanish seaman. The verdict of the Jury was: "That the said Joseph Selves came to his death by being struck on the head and face by a heavy piece of lumber, which slipped from its sling while being hoisted on board the brig Carmen, this morning, at Wappoo Mills. No blame can be attached to any one."

Dust.—One of the annoyances and inconvent-aces of city life is the quantity of dust which the ences of city lie is the quantity of dust which settles upon our clothing, adheres to our limbs and troubles our senses. It is true that generally, in well-managed towns, there can be found persons who, for a consideration, will, by means of a water cart, consent to keep down the "vile dust," but who are quite neglectful of their business until the near approach of a shower, at which time they display a zealousness and an activity that should afford an excellent example to that class of people know as "slow coaches," and consequently these watery machines are rather getting out of fashion, as one part of the population begin to think it rather hard that they should pay for a fall of rain that benefits the whole. But while dust is disagreeable to the pedestrian, how much more unpleasant is it to those who ride, especially where the trip is a rapid one, and the car or carriage is of such a construction as to produce a great draught; and it is this thought which makes us wonder how the Street Railway Company will prevent this great nuisance from annoying their passengers during the summer. That they are determined to afford comfort to all who patronize them we feel confident, and would suggest that this matter be considered by the Direction at an early day. wind, in dry seasons, stirs up, and which settles

Mayon's Court January 10 Robert Johnson a youthful specimen of black humanity, who threw a basin of water from a front window, to the great danger of passing sun-sets and sea-sides, was fined $1.

A chimney was reported as having been afire, and it being proved that more than a month had elapsed since it was swept, the contractor was fined $25.

Lewis Lake, a man of very dusky hue, who got drunk on tangle-lep bitters, and was butting against posts and people in the street, was fined $5. Lewis Insisted that he want's so tight as people thought, but that it was trouble that made him weak in the knees—having worked for a long time on a crop, and then only getting half paid, he took another half in whiskey, and his mind was so worked that he staggered. This explanation was very clear, but it did not have the effect of reducing the fine.

clear, but it did not have the effect of reducing the fine.

Three men, who had used the sidewalk for a mattress, and were found comfortably in bed, were made to pay $5 each for their lodging.

A tawern keeper, who had attempted to eject from his establishment a Sergeant of Police, who went in the house officially, was fined $20.

Amanda Doty, an aged female, late of Beaver Dam, the widow, no doubt, of some venerable Doty of African descent, who was clothed in a thin frock, a soldier's sack, and an original widewake hat, and who had applied for lodgings, was sent in a cart, under a guard of honor, to the colored people's Alms House, where she will have time to indulge in any quantity of reflections on the mutability of human affairs.

REAL ESTATE SALE. The old Exchange or sented a far more lively appearance yesterday than it has for years past. It seemed as if it had ahaken off its letharry, and forgetting that it was but a desolate shell-battered building, had turned to the days when, as the postoffice, it was daily and hour-ly crowded.

aving been gathered to their fathers; but the lance was as large and the bidding as spirited the days when we knew not the greenbacks, rge amount of valuable property, a portion estate of Rev. Patrick O'Neill, dereased, old under the direction of the Master in y and by Messers, Leitch & Bruns, real estate is. As this property offered for sale com-many valuable houses and lots in the Upper the bidding was lively and the prices real-ers almost cound to the anter-seller are wards, the bidding was lively and the prices realized were almost equal to the anto-sellum era.

The dwelling house and lot of the Rev. P. O'Neill (on the west side of King street, between Vanderhorst and Calboun), and four lots immediately south, brought the sum of $i.2,110.

Six lots and one dwelling, partly on King and Ratcliffe streets, realized $i.7,380.

Four lots in Cannon efreet, near the corner of Rattledge, sold for $5,725.

One lot, with several wooden buildings, on Ann street, opposite the Park, brought $2,050.

This has been one of the largest real estate sales of city property that has taken place for some time, and, considering the universal depression, and the stringency of the money market, the prices realized show that the depreciation of property is not so great as has been believed.

THE TIDAL DRAINS.—When this enterprise was started, some years since, it was hardly thought that it would prove as efficacious as at present; but the experiment (for at first it was scarcely that it would prove as efficacious as at present; but the experiment (for at first it was scarcely more) has proved eminently successful, and these subterranean sewers now radiate in every direction. During the war it was found impossible to attend to the necessary cleaning properly, and, as a natural consequence, the drains became choked and the supply of water in the man-holes was very inadequate for any emergency.

The City Council have recently given the subject their serious attention, and, though the supply of water can mever be made sufficient for the uses of the first department, yet the cleaning process will be of great benefit to the city. By a recent enactment the office of Keeper of the Tidal Drains was formed, and the incumbent required to bestow his undivided time and attention upon the drains, to see that they were cleaned properly and flooded at the right time.

Under this now regime the laborers have been husily engaged in removing the dirt that has accumulated for pearly six years. This process is very fatiguing and laborious, but the result has been very satisfactory, and the large amount of sand and mud that have been removed shows that the operation was not commenced too scon.

The main drains in Meeting street, on account of their size and the frequency of the man-holes, were more accessible end easier clansed, but it was found necessary to break extra holes into that on Calhoun street, before the mud could be removed. In some places this had accumulated to such an extent that but a few inches of space remained between the surface of the water and the root of the drain. The mud that is removed from these openings is used by the city in filling up the excessible and extent holes within its precincts.

Although these drains will never answer the double surges and increases; and increases.

excevated lots and low grounds within its precincts.

Although these drains will never answer the double purpose intended, viz: as sewers and inexhaustible fire wells—yet there is little doubt that they answer the first purpose admirably, and have grown in favor from their origin. A complete system of sewerage has always been considered indispensable to the bealth and comfort of a large city, and the tidal drains of Charleston are but the nucleus from which, in a few years, branches will shoot in every direction.

Paris, London, and the different European and American cities, have paid great attention to this subject, and their huge underground arches are among the wonders of the world. In some of the Northarn cities sewer hunting is a profession, and some persons have realized handsome sums by their dirty work. Unfortunately the South, and especially our own city, is too poor to offer any attractions in this line, and though there are many openings presented, nothing is found in them but mus.

THE HISTORY OF THE UMBELLA.—The weeping skies that ushered in the new year, and the sub-skies that ushored in the new year, and the subsequent flood that threatened to engulph us, caused much hurrying to and fro and seeking for shelter. Umbrelless were explured from the unwary, and even Daniel's chlebrated bine cotton would not have been safe from exactlegious hands.

It has been decided by some learned judge, who probably had just wade an umbrella, that they were not property, and thorefore liable to be sequestered when seen lying around loose. Be this as it may, unlivelles have always been an institution, and from the earliest ages were used as articles of inxury and as a shade from the sun.

The sculptures and paintings of Egypt represent a general use of the umbrella, and the recent discoveries at Ninevah show that it was generally carried over Kings in time of peace, and even in war. In shape these reaemble very closely those now in common use, but are always seen open in the paintings. From the very limited use of the umbrella in Asia and Africa, it seems to have passed as a distinction and a luxury into Greece and Italy. At Rome, when the reil could not be spread over the roof of the theate, it was the custom for females and elfominate men to defend themselves from the sun with the umbraculum of that paried that period.

The umbrella was used in England as a luxurious sunshade early in the 17th century. Ben Joneon mentions it by name in a comedy produced in 1616. In those days the umbrella was composed exteriorly of feathers in imitation of the plumage of a bird; atterwadds olded silk was the ordinary material, and Swift easys in his "City Shower:

"The broked un sametrous walks with hasty strides."

nary material, and Swift says in his "City Shower."
"The tucked up seamstress walks with hasty strides.
While streams run down her ciled umbrolla's sides."
These early specimens, when wet, were exceedingly difficult to open or to close. The stick was heavy and in unrecient, and the article generally very expensive. It was originally he d in a fashion the reverse of the present, for it then had a ring on the top, by which it was usually carried on the finger or hung up when not in use. On account of their rariety and oost, they were carefully preserved and religiously guarded; but as years rolled on manufactories were established, and umbrollas became what they are at present—cheap, serviceable, and easily appropriated.
